Monty's Men Give Chase To German Forces

More Allied Gains: Fifth Army Presses Farther Inland

LONDON, Sept. 22.

To-day's North African Allied Communique as given by the Algiers (United Nations) radio states:—

"The Fifth Army continued to regroup and move forward. San Cipriano, Montecorvino, Rovella and Campagna have been captured.

The Eighth Army have occupied the important town of Potenza.

Montecorvino and Rovella are twin towns about seven miles due north of Eboli. Potenza is fifty miles south of the Naples-Foggia defence line. It is in the centre of General Montgomery's coast to coast advance, being situated on the main Taranto-Naples railway line, eighty miles from the latter city. Campagna is about ten miles north-east of Eboli and twelve miles south-east of Montecorvino. Like the latter, it lies in the hilly Centimi mountains. Its capture means a considerable deepening of the Allied held area round the bay of Salerno. San Cipriano is a town about four and a half miles north-east of Salerno.

ON SALERNO FRONT

Reuter's special correspondent on the Salerno front writes on Tuesday night. The Fifth Army are steadily pressing inland. Although yielding ground, the Germans are still holding firmly to their pivotal position on the roads leading north from Salerno and north-west. German outposts in front of the main road to the north are probably having difficulties with their supplies, which must all come along a secondary road now completely destroyed by British artillery. These outposts can hardly be used for an offensive base.

NAZIS BEING CHASED

General Montgomery in his sudden and rapid advance through the mountains east of Salerno is to-day rolling up the German flank, while the Fifth Army presses the enemy steadily back towards Naples.

General Montgomery's unexpectedly rapid advance through the mountains has forced Marshal Kesselring to swing back his southern flank from the Salerno Gulf area and to fall back hurriedly to a new defence line. The Germans are firing on the Eighth Army reconnaissance units, but they are not staying to face General Montgomery's main forces.

We are chasing the Germans through mountains so quickly that we are leaving them no time for demolitions. The chase went on through heavily wooded country, most of it over 3,000 feet high. It is remarkable that the Germans who have been so expert at road demolitions, were unable to destroy a single bridge or pass in this area, so fast did our pursuit forces follow them.

FALL OF LESH IMMINENT

Montenegrin and Albanian partisans, driving south from Scutari are closing in on the important north Albanian port of Lesh which is expected to fall at any moment, says Reuter's special correspondent from Zurich. Near Cattaro further north and along 190 miles of the Dalmatian coast held by Yugoslav patriots, fighting is going on for the liberation of towns lost to the Germans a few months ago.

Here is the latest news about Yugoslav partisans: The railway line from Belgrade to Sarajevo has been cut in several places. Bielopije eight miles inland from Ragusa has been occupied, and the Yugoslav colours are flying on Durmitor Peak in central Montenegro. Bitsha, Kolashin and Sjenica, Montenegrin towns, have been recaptured.

General Loehr, Commander-in-Chief of German forces in the Balkans is reported to have left Zagreb early last week to organise defences along the Dalmatian coast and to conduct operations against Yugoslav patriots operating from the Dalmatian Alps.—Reuter.

Hess Mystery Cleared Up

He Came With Peace Offer To Britain, Says Eden:

WESTMINSTER, Sept. 22.

Mr. Anthony Eden, the British Foreign Secretary, gave the following facts about Herr Rudolf Hess in the House of Commons to-day:

Herr Hess flew to Great Britain in a Messerschmitt 110 from which he landed by parachute in the evening of May 10 1941 at Eaglesham in Scotland. He was wearing the uniform of a captain in the German air force. He gave his name as Alfred Horn on a "special mission" to see the Duke of Hamilton and that he had intended to land at Dungavel twelve miles distant from the spot where he landed. The prisoner was taken to Maryhill barracks and among his possessions were found photographs of himself and a small boy, also visiting cards of Dr. Karl Haushofer and Dr. Albret Haushofer, his son. No other documents or identifications were found on the prisoner.

On Sunday, May 11 at 10 a.m. Wing-Commander the Duke of Hamilton arrived at Maryhill barracks and visited the prisoner with an interrogating officer and a military officer on guard. At the prisoner's request the latter two officers withdrew. He then stated to the Wing-Commander that the latter had lunched in his house at Berlin at the time of the olympic games, in 1936 and added:

"I am Rudolf Hess". The Wing-Commander had no recollection of the prisoner and was not aware that he had ever seen or met Rudolf Hess. The prisoner then proceeded, "I am on a mission of humanity. The Fuehrer does not want to defeat England and wants to stop fighting."

His friend Haushofer, he stated had told him that the Wing-Commander was an Englishman who would understand his point of view. He had tried to arrange a meeting in Lisbon. He had three times before tried to fly to Dungavel, the first time being in December 1940, but had been turned back by the weather or various other reasons. He did not want to come during the time of the British successes in Libya lest it should appear that it was the weakness of Germany which had prompted the flight. But now that Germany had had some success there, he was glad to come. He stressed that his presence showed his sincerity and the German willingness for peace.

His main theme was that Hitler was convinced that Germany would win sooner or later; that he the prisoner wanted to stop unnecessary slaughter. He asked the Wing-Commander to get together the leading members of his party to talk over things with a view to making peace proposals. He then stated that he could tell him what the Fuehrer's peace terms would be. The Wing-Commander pointed out that there was now only one party in Great Britain. The Wing-Commander immediately flew to London and reported this conversation stating that they could not be sure, but believed that the prisoner was in fact Rudolf Hess.

Mr. Kirpatrick of the Foreign Office who had, during the period of his official duties in Berlin before the war, become acquainted with Hess was at once flown up to Scotland to identify the prisoner. He had three interviews on the 15th, 14th and 15th of May. At the first of these he confirmed that the prisoner was Rudolf Hess. During these interviews Hess further elaborated the object of his visit. He stressed the enormous power of Germany in the air and in U-boats which later, he stated, would grow much greater. He affirmed the certainty of England's defeat by blockade if not very quickly in the course of two or three years. He expressed his sorrow at the prospect of prolongation of the struggle. He had come, he said, without the knowledge of the Fuehrer to convince responsible persons that since England could not win, the wisest course was to make peace at once.

He gave his word of honour that the Fuehrer had never entertained any designs against the British Empire nor had he ever aspired to world domination. The Fuehrer would sincerely regret the collapse of the British Empire and Hitler had declared to him as recently as May 3 that he had no oppressive demands to make on England.

The solution which Hess put forward was as follows:

FIRSTLY, that Germany should be given a free hand in Europe.

SECONDLY, that England should have a free hand in the British Empire except that the ex-German colonies should be returned to Germany.

THIRDLY, that Russia should be included in Asia but that Germany had certain demands to make of Russia which would have to be satisfied either by negotiation or as a result of war. There was, however, no truth in the rumours that the Fuehrer contemplated an early attack on Russia.

FOURTHLY, that the British should evacuate Iraq.

FIFTHLY, a peace agreement would have to contain provision for reciprocal indemnification of British and German nationals whose property had been expropriated as a result of the war.

SIXTHLY, the proposal could only be considered on the understanding that it was negotiated by Germany with the English Government other than the present British Government, Mr. Churchill who had planned the war since 1936 and his colleagues who had lent themselves to his war policy were not the persons with whom the Fuehrer would negotiate.

Hess concluded by emphasising that the Fuehrer really wanted a permanent understanding with Great Britain on a basis which preserved the British Empire intact. His own flight was intended to give Great Britain a chance of opening conversations without loss of prestige. If this chance were to be rejected it would be the Fuehrer's duty to destroy Great Britain utterly and to keep the country after the war in a state of permanent subjection. These so-called 'terms' were restated by Hess in a signed document dated June 10. The only new point made in this document was the provision that a simultaneous Armistice and Peace must be concluded with Italy.

It was throughout made clear to Hess that there was no question whatever of any talks or negotiations of any kind taking place with Hitler or his Government.

Hess has been dealt with as a prisoner of war since his arrival in this country and will so continue to be treated until the end of the war.—Reuter.

NAZIS QUIT ANAPA

BERLIN, Sept. 22: The German News Agency announces that German troops have evacuated Anapa.

PROGRESS OF EGYPT

New Consul-General On Agricultural And Educational Experiments

BOMBAY, Wednesday.

Fourteen million peasants of Egypt keep themselves above want to-day by tilling 6 million acres of land mostly according to traditional methods of agriculture and provide their country with enough essential commodities to do without rationing. Sugar is the only article of food rationed to-day but within a short time this restriction is likely to be removed too. The peasant who is to-day devoting two thirds of cultivable land to the growth of cereals and only a third for cotton, presents a picture of contentment, particularly after the introduction of a novel system of education in the rural tracts, ten years ago, for the benefit of his children. The experiment is known as compulsory Maktabs and comprises of 6,000 schools in the countryside where every child of the peasant about the age of 8 is compulsorily taught reading, writing and arithmetic and technical knowledge of farming.

M. Abdul Monem, Consul-General for Egypt.

RURAL EGYPT

The progressive Ministry of Education of Egypt which hit upon this plan ten years ago had one aim in view namely, to drag the peasant out of the mire of illiteracy and at the same time ensure his sticking to the soil. The experiment has met with marvellous results because even the younger generation of peasants, while being literate, is no more a victim to the lure of the town or the city.

This was the picture of rural Egypt presented by His Excellency M. Mohamed Abdul Monem, the new Consul-General for Egypt in Bombay, in the course of a special interview to the "Chronicle".

Egypt's progress in every sphere has been remarkable during the past few years, he said. Literacy has progressed to 16 per cent since 1925, the year that ushered in a new educational era in Egypt, with the establishment of the first University in the country, the King Fuad University at Cairo and with the sponsoring of co-education above the secondary stage. Literacy among women is in the neighbourhood of 16 per cent too.

Madame Monem wife of Consul-General of Egypt

EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM

Prior to the overhauling of the educational system in 1925 by the Ministry of Education, Egypt was very conservative. The Ministry in 1925 introduced the new educational systems of the west, overcoming many handicaps and established the first University. Free education in the primary and secondary stages has progressed to 30 per cent to-day. It was only 2 per cent till 1938. The second modern University in Egypt, the King Farouk University was started in 1942. There is a third on the horizon—the Assi-ut University. Prior to 1925, Egypt had only High Schools giving diplomas.

Eve has taken big strides in Egypt during the past few years. But she is not represented in Parliament.

"Time is not ripe yet for active part in politics" she says. She is content with social work for the present. She secures jobs in four Ministries.

Egypt's progress in industry is phenomenal to-day. Next to industry in the country, comes agriculture.

"Industrialisation of India will be one of the subjects of study I will take up while in India" said the Consul-General.

Helpless from want of food, this little waif evidently has not much chance of surviving unless quick help is given.

DOMES OF KIEV SIGHTED

Red Army Forces Pace In Drive Towards Capital Of Ukraine

LONDON, Sept. 22.

The Moscow radio said to-day: "Through the crystal clear autumn air of the Ukraine the Soviet troops can already see the gilt domes of Kiev glistening in the brilliant sunshine."

Reuter's staff correspondent in Moscow says:—General Rokossovsky's forces are to-day poised for a final fullscale assault on Kiev, the capital of the Ukraine, which is now threatened with encirclement from the north and the south.

The fall of Chernigov, a big rail centre on the Desna river thirty miles north-east of Kiev, has extended the original Soviet wedge to a firmly held 100 mile front, while the spearheads are now less than 25 miles from the capital.

The Germans hoped to hold the Desna river as a defence line through the winter and had strengthened the fortifications along the western bank for several weeks to cover direct links between the central and southern fronts.

To reach Chernigov which is only 30 miles east of the Dnieper, General Rokossovsky's armies had to fight their way across the Desna and the swing south in an outflanking movement. After three days' fighting they stormed the town.

PINCER ATTACK ON SMOLENSK

Smolensk, the Germans' greatest base in the whole of Russia is now being attacked by one of the most daring pincer movements undertaken by the Red Army since the German Sixth Army was trapped at Stalingrad. General Solikovsky is driving a tremendous wedge at a high speed between Smolensk and Velizh to the north-west. He is outflanking the German fortifications and placing the enemy's rear communications in the utmost peril.

HEAVY NEW BATTLES

Biting into the triple ring of the defences round the Ukraine capital, the Red Army swept forward after capturing Roslavka Yaroslavka, 32 miles north-east of Kiev.

Meanwhile, the northern jaw of the great Soviet pincer movement at Smolensk is now less than 18 miles away. Soviet and German troops are locked in heavy new battles.

Troops of the Kalinin front, outflanking Smolensk from the north, are moving down the Dvina valley towards Vitebsk, following the capture of Velizh. Advanced elements of the main Soviet forces sweeping westwards from Slavgorod are now only ten miles from the great waterway.

Further south fierce fighting is going on in the outskirts of Melitopol the capture of which will cut the enemy's main escape line from the Crimea.

NAZI COUNTER-ATTACKS

Battles are taking place along the railway line less than twenty miles east of Dnepropetrovsk, the German base on the Dnieper bend. The Germans here are counter-attacking with considerable tank forces, according to the "Izvestia".

The latest "Red Star" report says that beyond Chernigov on the Lower Desna, the Russians are forcing the Germans back under great pressure towards the upper Dnieper, eight miles above Kiev.—Reuter.

WITHDRAWAL OR REVERSE?

(From Our Correspondent.)
LONDON, Sept. 22.

Reports from Stockholm indicate that the Germans are planning to withdraw as far back as the Polish border. Moscow, however, regards such report as unadulterated Nazi propaganda.

The Helsinki newspaper "Sosial Demokraati" urges the Finnish Government to realise that the strength of the Red Army does not require further proof and that Government should approach the U.S.S.R. for a separate peace.

Opposition Walk-Out In Bengal Assembly

Sequel To Speaker's "No" To Huq: Opposition Leader On Minister's "Outrageously False" Statement On Food Situation

CALCUTTA, Sept. 22.

The Opposition staged a walk-out in the Bengal Legislative Assembly this afternoon during the discussion on the "general administration" budget.

After question time, Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy, Minister for Civil Supplies, made a statement on the food situation in the province in reply to a request made by the Leader of the official Congress Party on the previous day. After he had made the statement, Mr. A. K. Fazlul Huq, Leader of the Opposition, desired to make a statement in reference to the statement made by the Minister for Civil Supplies. The Speaker Mr. Syed Nausher Ali, said that he could not allow him to make a statement at this stage but he would be permitted to do so if there was time, after the budget discussions fixed for the day had concluded.

The Chair then called upon Sir Nazimuddin, Chief Minister, to move the Budget Demands on the "General Administration", which he moved amidst continued interruption from Opposition benches. The chair then called upon the Opposition members to move the "cut" motions standing in their names, but they declined to do so, insisting that the Leader of the Opposition had a right to make a statement at any time during the session and he should not be deprived of the valued right.

"OUTRAGEOUSLY FALSE"

Mr. Huq said that the statement of the Minister for Civil Supplies was "outrageously false" and that the debate and speeches in the House had become a mere mockery in view of the grave food situation in the province. Unless Government could give them an undertaking that they were going to find food for the people it was no use participating in the budget discussion.

The Opposition then withdrew from the House.—A. P.

NO LACK OF GRAINS

Situation Satisfactory, Says Suhrawardy

CALCUTTA, Sept. 22.

Making a statement on the food situation in the Bengal Legislative Assembly today the Minister for Civil Supplies, Mr. H. S. Suhrawardy, said with reference to Greater Calcutta that the steps which were in operation and the steps which they were taking or about to take in a day or two would make the foodgrains situation satisfactory. There would be no outcry of lack of foodgrains in Calcutta except for political reasons. Distribution from shops would not, however, be on a wholesale scale. A person wanting a maund of rice all at once would find it difficult to secure it.

Mr. Suhrawardy added that they had planned to distribute 26,000 tons of wheat products per month from the Punjab, but this distribution would obviously depend on the speed of procurement and dispatch from the Punjab. There was also interdistrict movement of foodgrains.—A. P.

AMERY ON INDIAN FOOD SITUATION

WESTMINSTER, Sept. 22.

Mr. Amery made the following statement about famine conditions in India in a written reply to the House of Commons to-day.

"Besides the measures taken for the improvement of the food position over India as a whole, rationing plans are already in operation in Bombay city and some other large towns. They are to be extended to a total of some 70 such towns including Calcutta where rationing is expected to be in operation in November.

Relief measures are in operation in Calcutta and other parts of Bengal. I hope to make a fuller statement on the subject within the next few days."—Reuter.

PREMIER'S SURVEY

Mr. Churchill's war survey was the longest and most interesting that he has so far given to the House of Commons. It was rightly both. He was dealing with a war situation which marks not only the final turn of the tide but also its irresistible flow from several directions towards the common destination, victory. As the Premier has himself pointed out, it has been, for a year now, a tale of unbroken successes on every front, land, sea and air. The U-boat war has been practically won despite the virtual certainty that Hitler's submarines will achieve some successes now and then. On the sea, the Mediterranean, so important in the war against Hitler and even Japan is now almost an Allied lake and the surrender of the Italian fleet has completely altered the balance of naval power in the world. Presently the Allies will be supreme not only in the Atlantic and the Mediterranean but also in the Pacific and Indian Oceans. In the air, the R.A.F. alone is now stronger than the Luftwaffe and even the extra-cautious Mr. Churchill hopes that the combined Anglo-American-Russian air strength will devastatingly overwhelm Germany before the end of 1944. The situation is just as satisfactory on land. The result is that the Germans are not only on the defensive but also in retreat wherever they are in contact with their opponents. They are slowly withdrawing in Italy, opening up interesting possibilities for the Allies in both the eastern and western Mediterranean regions. And they are in general but fairly orderly retreat on the Russian front.

The Germans have no alternative but to retire behind the main defences of their "Festung Europa" in the hope that the weather and Allied hesitation would give them a valuable respite. This is what makes the question of a second front an important and urgent one. Mr. Churchill has at last fully accepted the fact that it is invasion across the Channel which alone will constitute a second front. But he insists upon being very calculating and very cautious. There are circumstances in which the desire to make sure of possibilities and so on before launching an undertaking can be carried too far. Mr. Churchill is now doing it in the matter of the second front. The circumstances justify those risks which Britain and America took in the Salerno battle and which Mr. Churchill himself defends. Those risks are justified for the very sufficient reason that the Germans have not yet stabilised their lines in the east, in Italy and in the Balkans. Let us hope that one result of the conference of the three Allied Foreign Ministers will be to speed up the opening of the second front.

Mr. Churchill also referred to the war against Japan. Generally but not so immediately the picture of Germany applies to Japan, too. The Japs, too, are on the defensive everywhere. They have shot their offensive bolt and are now forced into the pre-retreat phase, the phase of gradual withdrawal. They have lost heavily in the air and on sea and lost, as Mr. Churchill says, beyond the capacity for replacing losses. Their losses which cannot be checked or made good render their hold on outposts increasingly untenable. Added to this is the tremendous fact of continued and rapid accession to British and particularly American strength. But they have so far suffered very little, indeed, compared to Germany. Moreover, they are in a very favourable position on their main front, the front equivalent to the German front in Russia. China is undergoing an agonising pressure by Japan mainly because the Allies have let her remain blockaded for such a terribly long time. To save China, that is, to reconquer Burma long before the next monsoon breaks is an urgent moral and military task which justifies, indeed, calls for even definitely grave risks. But Mr. Churchill, while defending the creation of the South-East Asia Command and the appointment of Lord Louis Mountbatten—the Premier even cited Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek—said little about that task which strengthens the suspicion that British strategy is concerned far more with south-eastern Asia than with China and Burma.

Sound Suggestions

The Gregory Committee's report on the foodgrains policy seems to be a sound one as a whole, judged by the summary supplied by the Associated Press. Its recommendations are substantially on the lines suggested from time to time by responsible leaders and institutions. They are naturally fuller and more detailed but here only the essential recommendations can be considered. The most important recommendation is that throughout the period of the war the food supply must be considerably augmented both through increased production and imports and that the export of rice must cease altogether. It is a sound suggestion regarding imports that they should be 1-1/2 million tons in the first year hereafter and one million tons per annum in succeeding years, the reason for the larger initial quantity being that, whilst one million tons should be used for current consumption, the remaining half million should be utilised to create a Central Foodgrains Reserve to the constitution of which reserve the report attaches great importance. We wholeheartedly endorse the suggestion of such a reserve as it will not only be invaluable in an emergency but will also go a long way in keeping down prices within reasonable limits.

As regards increased production, which must necessarily be the mainstay at all times, the report makes a number of useful suggestions, including the one which we frequently made, namely, under-polishing of rice. As an inducement to the cultivator to produce more, the report rightly remarks: "Rising prices of foodgrains as such do not necessarily evoke an increased supply, so long as the higher money prices received by the cultivator cannot be translated into an effective supply of goods which the cultivator requires. Every effort must, therefore, be made to increase the supply of such goods, and the problem should rank next to the problem of munitions supply" The supply of goods should, of course, include good seed and fertilizers and should be coupled with necessary facilities about irrigation and reduction in land revenue and a guranteed fair price for his produce.

Not the least important set of suggestions is with regard to the administrative side of the problem. The report only reflects public opinion when it recommends the abandonment of the "hands off" attitude of the Centre and says that the Centre cannot accept any situation which would involve its having to carry great responsibilities without having adequate power. The report requires the Centre to have the last word as regards price-changes, allocations of supplies, the management of the Central Foodgrains Reserve, any conditions laid down for rescue or special assistance operations and details of administration. Without the exercise of such powers there cannot be the requisite measure of co-ordination and efficiency. But, as Sir Purshottamdas Thakurdas points out, "Governments both at the Centre and in the Provinces, in intimate touch with the people would undoubtedly bring about an easier and more effective solution of the problem than is the case at present".

Colour Bar Incident In London Hotel

FAMOUS WEST INDIAN CRICKETER ON WAR JOB FORCED TO QUIT

LONDON, Sept. 22.

The High Court action by Learie Constantine, the famous Coloured West Indian Cricketer, against the owners of the Imperial Hotel, London for "failure to receive and lodge him" promises to become a 'Cause Celebre.' It helps to put into focus the whole question of the Colour Bar which the presence of so many American troops has now raised in Britain. Constantine who is here as a welfare officer to West Indian technicians in Lancashire came to London to play at Lords on August bank holiday week-end in the England versus Empire Match. He and his wife and daughter left the Imperial Hotel, after the guests objected to the presence of a Coloured Man. The case was reported by Doctor Moody, President of the League of Coloured Peoples to the Colonial Secretary Colonel Oliver Stanley. The Manager of the Hotel Mr. Harold Walduck declared afterwards that Constantine had left the hotel voluntarily but added "this hotel caters for White people, and at the present time they are largely Americans. For myself, I don't care whether they are Black, White, Green or Yellow. I only carry on the hotel to meet the requirements of patrons."

On the 4th anniversary of the war, Constantine was invited to give a postscript in the B.B.C. nine o'clock news. He then said "Daily humiliations hurt and make you bitter, if you are'nt careful."

Describing an occasion when he was asked to leave a dance at a hostel he said "after an incident like that, I go home, and I can't eat or sleep. You wake up in the middle of the night, and it is there. That did hurt".

After the broadcast, he received hundreds of sympathetic letters, the writers including the cricketer Sir Pelham Warner and many army officers. Businessmen and children Sir Herbert Williams stated he would ask a question in Parliament about the Imperial Hotel incident. He said "I have never met Mr. Constantine, but it is a disgraceful thing that a man who is on a job of work in the war and is a British citizen should meet with such a cold reception."—Reuter.

Evidence Of Police Officers & Title-holders Disbelieved

Lahore Magistrate Convicts Dairy Proprietor And His Two Employees Under D. I. R.

LAHORE, Sept. 22.

"I am not going to accept the principle that the rich and the well-to-do people should be believed in contradiction to the poor and the destitute. On the contrary, people who roll in wealth are more prone to tell lies than the poor, for the latter fear God more than the rich with these observations Mr. M. G. Cheema, Magistrate, First Class, convicted Mr. A. S. Khan, proprietor of the Atlantic Dairies, the biggest dairy in Lahore, and his two employees and sentenced them to three months' imprisonment each under Rule 18 of the D.I.R. on a charge of refusing to sell milk to a poor woman at the control rate.

The accused were further sentenced to three months each on a charge of assaulting the woman, the sentences to run concurrently.

"PERJURED THEMSELVES"

"In this case it appears to me," added the Magistrate, "the defence witnesses, some of whom belong to the title-holder class and others are men of property and still others who enjoy social position have perjured themselves in the witness box. If we were to accept the arguments of counsel for the accused that the poor people should in no case be relied upon. The result would be that the richer people oppressing the poor will in no case receive punishment in a court of law. I am convinced that the statement of the old woman Rani and her ten years old daughter, Ramdulari, are correct and worthy of credit."

FACTS OF CASE

It was alleged by the complainant in the case, Rani (an employee of the dairy) that following the Milk Control Order issued by the District Magistrate she went to the dairy to purchase one "pao" of milk for her two year old child. Instead of milk, she alleged, she was given beating and turned out of the dairy premises. She went to the police to lodge a complaint but they refused to register her case. She then went to the court of Mr. M. G. Cheema who took down her statement and summoned the accused persons.

The prosecution case was based on the statements of the complainant and her ten year old daughter while 21, witnesses, some of whom were title-holders and police officers were produced by the defence. They were all disbelieved—A. P.

SOVIET HOLDS KEY TO FUTURE

Churchill Foreshadows Meeting With Stalin

That the operations in Italy is the third front and a second front on a mass scale is impending, was stated in the Parliament by Mr. Winston Churchill in the course of his elaborate review of the war situation along the world-wide front.

The Premier continuing his speech said:—

Nazi tyranny and Prussian militarism are the two main elements in German life which must be absolutely destroyed. They must be absolutely rooted out of Europe and the world are to be spared a third and still more frightful conflict.

Some of the main points which stand out were, firstly the Italian forces and the Italian population have everywhere shown themselves unfriendly or actively hostile to the Germans and everywhere had endeavoured to obey as far as possible the orders of the King of Italy's new Government.

Secondly, every effort has been made both by that Government and its forces to comply with the armistice conditions.

It is necessary in the general interest as well as in that of Italy that all the surviving forces of Italy's national life should be rallied together around their Government and that the King and Marshal Badoglio should be supported (cheers) by whatever Liberal Left-Wing elements which are capable of making headway against the Nazi Quisling gang and thus drive this villainous combination from Italian soil or better still annihilate it on the spot.

SECOND FRONT

I call this front we have opened first in Africa, next in Sicily and now in Italy the third front.

We shall not grudge any sacrifice for the common cause but I must regard it as a matter of personal honour to act only in the conviction of success founded upon the highest professional advice at our disposal in operations of the first magnitude. (cheers).

I decline, therefore, to discuss at all the question of where, how and on what scale the main assault from the west will be launched and I trust and am confident that the House will support the Government in this attitude."

Mr. Churchill then discussed plans made at Quebec for closer correlation of policy and action between the Soviet Union, Britain and the United States. Marshal Stalin in replying to a telegram from President Roosevelt and himself, informing Russia of Italian peace feelers, expressed the wish to have an Inter-Allied Commission set up in the Mediterranean to deal with Mediterranean problems as they arose.

3-POWER CONFERENCE

"We are very glad to find this friendly interest taken in our Mediterranean operations by our Russian Allies. The Commission cannot, of course, supersede the authority or diminish the responsibilities of the Governments, but its members will be kept fully informed of all that passes and will have power of individual or collective representation to their Governments. Our representative will be Mr. Harold MacMillan. Arrangements have also been made for a Tri-Partite Conference between the Foreign Secretaries of the three countries or their representatives.

We shall be represented by the Foreign Secretary and the Conference will take place at an early date and no question will be barred from its discussions.

We have also confident hope of a subsequent meeting before the end of the year between President Roosevelt, Marshal Stalin and myself and I need scarcely say that the time and place of this meeting will not be made public until it has been concluded.

No meeting during this war could carry with it so much significance for the future of the world as that between the heads of the three governments for without close, cordial and lasting association between Soviet Russia and the other great Allies we might find ourselves at the end of the war only to have entered upon a period of deepening confusion.

Mr. Churchill said that at Quebec they also settled the question of recognition of the French Committee of National Liberation. Both Russia and the United States were agreeable to this Committee being represented on the new commission which is being set up in the Mediterranean. They take their place as an equal partner with the great nations warring against Germany in Europe.

BALKAN PATRIOTS' FINE RESISTANCE

In the Balkans Patriot bands of Greeks and Yugoslavs with indomitable tenacity maintained formidable resistance to the enemy.

They hold great regions under their control, fight fierce battles in the mountains, destroy communications, occupy towns and ports with vigour and on a scale which has required no fewer than 47 German, Italian and Bulgarian divisions to be maintained continuously in these vast and wild spaces.

Of these, upwards of 25 were Italian divisions who even if unable to turn on the common foe will certainly be no further danger to the Patriots and indeed, a valuable source of equipment.

Hitherto we have had no means of helping these unconquerable champions of Greek and Yugoslav freedom, except by airborne supplies and by officers and money. With control of Southern Italy to which we are confidently looking forward in the near future, perhaps a command of the Adriatic should become possible.

All this opens to us a far-reaching vista of action which must also be surveyed in relation to the conditions and temper of the people in the satellite States of Hungary, Rumania, and Bulgaria, all of which is a study in itself. All of which will be increasingly affected by the advance of the Russian armies and by the development of Anglo-American bombing.

The third and most tangible advantage we have gained from the overthrow of Italy is the surrender of the Italian fleet. This was fulfilled in fidelity to orders of the Italian King and the Badoglio Government. This event has decisively altered the naval balance of the world.

I have one word more. In the United States I was conscious of a feeling of friendliness towards Britain and the British Commonwealth such as I have never known before.

"WAR BEING WELL MANAGED"

Concluding Mr. Churchill said:—

I have found the feeling everywhere that the war was being well managed. It is my hope that this conviction is generally shared at home (cheers and laughter) and that the House of Commons will feel no need to reproach itself for the unwavering confidence which it has given to His Majesty's servants in their discharge of exceptional burdens thrust upon them". (Prolonged cheer).—Reuter.

Sir Frederick James Warns

NEW DELHI, Sept. 22.

Sir Frederic James, Member, Legislative Assembly (central) has issued the following statement to the press:—

"My attention has been drawn to the proposal to establish an Indian Council of World Affairs for the purpose of studying international problems. The aims are admirable but the sponsors of this proposal seem to have ignored the existence of the Indian Institute of International Affairs, of which they are members.

It would be a pity to establish a rival organisation, and I would earnestly request Messrs. Kunzru and Sapru to consult the Council of the Institute, so as to avoid duplication of resources and efforts. The Indian Institute of International Affairs which is affiliated to Chatham House in London and whose members have attended international conferences in the past exists precisely for those purposes which are described in their statement. Let the existing organisation be strengthened, and if necessary reorganised, but a division of effort is unnecessary."—A. P.

SPANISH ABUSE OF NEUTRALITY

WESTMINSTER, September 22.

Britain's relations with Spain formed the subject of a number of questions addressed to the Foreign Minister Mr. Eden in the House of Commons today, including the recent interview with General Franco by Sir Samuel Hoare, the Spanish Blue Division in Russia and Tangier.

Mr. Eden said that Sir Samuel Hoare drew General Franco's attention to the various complaints the British Government had been forced to make from time to time of discrimination against their interests. He added: "While some of these complaints have been remedied, Sir Samuel Hoare drew attention to things that still requires to be dealt with if General Franco's proclaimed policy of equal treatment of the belligerents by Spain was to be effectively carried out".

Among other questions specifically referred to was the position of the Blue Division and it was made clear to General Franco that so long as it remains in the Soviet Union it was a serious obstacle to the development of cordial Anglo-Spanish relations". Mr. Eden said he had no information to show that Spanish ports were available to German submarines.

When a questioner asked what General Franco's response was, and if unfavourable, whether further steps were contemplated Mr. Eden said: "The Spanish Government have undertaken to look into the complaints and we look to them for an early improvement in the situation. Things are better than they were."

Regarding Tangier, said Mr Eden it was Government's intention to put forward, at the first suitable opportunity, for the consideration of the other interested parties proposals for the future of the zone. Meanwhile Government had informed the Spanish Government that they were bound to take a serious view of the use of the zone by the German Consul-General and by Germans for unneutral activities directed against British interests.

"Government have requested the Spanish Government to put an end to these abuses and to ensure maintenance of strict neutrality of the zone, which the Spanish Government stated in June 1940 to be exclusive object of Spanish occupation," added Mr. Eden.—Reuter.

Labour M. P. Blames Indian Leaders

LONDON, Sept. 22.

The Labour Member of Parliament for Bristol South, Mr. Alexander Walkden, in a letter to the "Daily Herald" to-day declared, "The rigid negative attitude" of Indian leaders of opinion to Crips' proposals was one cause of the present deadlock.

He adds, "To suggest that the blame rests entirely with our own Government is unfair. It is time we told our Indian friends quite straight that they are responsible for the existing position and must help alter it if they really want a settlement".—Reuter.

Indian Council Of World Affairs

NEW DELHI, Sept. 22.

A meeting of those interested in a proposal to set up an organisation provisionally named Indian Council of World Affairs with the object of studying world problems from Indians' point of view is expected to be held shortly to give definite shape to the proposal.

TETE-A-TETE

WITHOUT COMMENT—

"There was the crime and though it cannot be undone and though nations who allow their rights and liberty to be subverted by tyrants must suffer heavy penalties for crimes of those tyrants. ....."

—Mr. Winston Churchill on Italy.

* * *

Concluding his long report, Mr. Churchill assured the House of Commons that "in the United States I was conscious of a feeling of friendliness towards Britain and the British Commonwealth such as I have never known before."

Is the omission of "Empire" just an accidental mistake by Mr. Churchill.

Or is it the deliberate fault of American "feeling"?

* * *

Mr. Churchill emphasized that the S. E. Asia command and the appointment of Lord Louis Mountbatten had been warmly welcomed by Generalissimo Chiang-kai-Shek.

But what else could the Generalissimo do in the circumstances?

* * *

By the way, Mr. Churchill has again spoken of the present and the future in terms of close co-operation between "three great allies", Britain, America and Russia.

But, of course, the exclusion of China will again be apologised for as a mere inadvertence on Mr. Churchill's part.

* * *

Dealing with the situation in Italy, the British Premier urgently appealed to all Liberal and Leftist elements in that country to rally to the support of King Victor Emmanuel and Marshal Badoglio.

The omens are rapidly developing towards their threatened materialisation?

* * *

The Badoglio Government, said Mr. Churchill, had taken very carefully conceived measures to hold the ex-Duce.

But, of course, they miscarried and the ex-Duce was delivered into the arms of the Fuehrer safe and crying healthily

He is, however, reported to have weighed much less than expected.

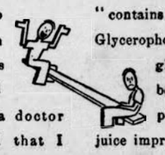
* * *

The Carabinieri guards, Mr. Churchill seemed to complain, failed in their duty because they did not shoot Mussolini.

We are glad they failed. But lest the zealous champions of the Defence of India Rules should in the names of Maxwells and Tottenhams rush upon us with the chains and fetters, we may add for their information that we agree with men like G. B. S. who suggest that Il Duce should be allowed to write his side of the story first.

Weak & Difficult?
GIVE HIM A TONIC THAT IMPROVES DIGESTION, TOO

From bad to worse—that's how my son was getting. No appetite, nor interest in studies or games. His school-mates avoided his company, until a doctor friend recommended that I start him on Hemo-Drakso-Malt.



"Hemo-Drakso-Malt," he said, "contains assimilable iron and Glycerophosphates and haemoglobin to build up the boy's constitution while pepsin, malt and grape juice improve digestion. It is the safest tonic for children."

On top of his form. The transformation was remarkable. Now my boy leads the others in the school-room and on the playfield. He eats well and sleeps well and is not a bit difficult to manage.

I must recommend Hemo-Drakso-Malt to my complaining husband; —may be it'll do me good too.

The Half-Column By "Dim"

The "Sunday Times" (London) of June 20th has a leading article on "The Indian Appointments" by Scrutator. The following is a pertinent extract:

"Of course the choice is in a sense experimental. But some risks are inevitable in any case. The tasks awaiting the holder of the post must be difficult whoever he may be. NO ONE IN SIR ARCHIBALD WAVELL'S POSITION WOULD UNDERTAKE THEM UNLESS SUSTAINED NOT ONLY BY COURAGE BUT BY THE POSSESSION OF SOMETHING LIKE A PLAN. He is not a man who would accept the Viceroyalty for the mere sake of being Viceroy. He has glory enough without."

* * *

A great book, whose name I will not yet mention, has just come to hand. From it I give you a small passage written by a Russian journalist which speaks for itself:

"The lapping waves of the Volga cast up a charred log on the sandy shore at our feet. On it lies the body of a drowned woman holding on to the log with scorched and distorted fingers. Where it has been washed up from I cannot say. Perhaps she was one of the victims who perished on the steamer, or in the fire on the pier. Her face is disfigured. The suffering she underwent before death released her must have been unbearable. The Germans did this, did it in front of our eyes. And let them not ask for quarter from those who witnessed it. After Stalingrad we shall give no quarter."
